After giving details of the method adopted in Madras for securing representation of Land holding classes, the note concludes as follows:—

"If the Mysore Inamdars are granted the right of representation, similar rules will be prepared and put up for approval."

The following remark is made by the Chief Secy:—

4) Although Inamdars in Mysore are not quite like the Jenmis, Mirasidars & Zamindars in the Madras, it seems desirable to recognise their separate interests, which on many points are distinct from those of ryots (whether Sirkai ryots or tenants of Inam villages). It is not very difficult to form a Constituency for them. Holders of Inam Villages

The first member has written as follows

"I am in general agreement with the views expressed in the Chief Secy's note

The Second member remarked as follows:-

"The Inamdars Association may be given a representation - also the Lawyers association."

The question of the strength & Composition of the was considered in Council and in para 3 of their Resolution dated 9.6.23 they recognised Inamdars as a Constituency for the present.

Even in the draft provisional order there is reducing more than the mere mention of the Inamdars in the State as a Constituency to represent one of the Special Interests.

Representation of Inamdars in the R.A.

DIARY No. 551

	Ref

	1A.

Government have recognised the interests of Inamdars as one of the special interests entitled to representation on the Representative Assembly.

At present, the Inamdar's representative is returned by the Mysore Inamdar's Association. When the point was under consideration in the Council, it was remarked that this Association is doing no real work and that its right of representation may therefore be withdrawn and a fresh constituency formed for Inamdars.

Orders are required here whether in accordance with the Committee's recommendations existing associations enjoying the right of representation may continue to exercise the right till the formation of more suitable Electorates, the Inamdar's association may be permitted to return a member to the new Representative Assembly or whether proposals may be submitted for the formation of a new Inamdars constituency.
